Poetry.

The Deacon's Prayer.

BY WILLIAM O. STODDARD.

In the regular evening meeting
That the church holds, every week,
One night a listening angel sat
To hear them pray and speak.

It puzzled the soul of the angel
Why some to that gathering came,
But sick and sinful hearts he saw,
With grief and guilt aflame.

They were silent, but said to the angel,
"Our lives have need of Him!"
While doubt, with dull, vague, throbbing pain,
Stirred through their spirits dim.

You could see 'twas the regular meeting,
And the regular seats were filled,
And all knew who would pray and talk,
Though any one might that willed.

From his place in front, near the [illegible] pit,
In his long-accustomed way,
When the Book was read, and the hymn was sung,
The Deacon arose to pray.

First came the long preamble—
If Peter had opened so,
He had been, ere the Lord his prayer had heard,
Full fifty fathomes below.

Then a volume of information
Poured forth, as if to the Lord,
Concerning His ways and attributes,
And the things by Him abhorred.

But not in the list of the latter
Was mentioned the mocking breath
Of the hypocrite prayer that is not prayer.
And the make-believe life in death.

Then he prayed for the church; and the pastor;
And that "souls might be his hire"—
Whatever his stipened otherwise—
And the Sunday-school; and the choir;

And the swarming hordes of India;
And the perishing, vile Chinese;
And the millions who bow to the Pope of Rome;
And the pagan churches of Greece;

And the outcast remnants of Judah,
Of whose guilt he had much to tell—
He prayed, or he told the Lord he prayed,
For everything out of Hell.

Now, if all of that burden had really
Been weighing upon his soul,
'Twould have sunk him through to the China side,
And raised a hill over the hole.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

'Twas the regular evening meeting,
And the regular prayers were made.
But the listening angel to Id the Lord
That only the silent prayed.

Selected Story.

The Test.

A PLEASING STORY.

"Any letters for me to-day?" asked my friend Jules of the porter's wife, as he and I ascended from the three rooms and kitchen we occupied, and were wont to call our apartments. It is true they were au sixeme, but n'importe; they were light and airy, and from the windows a beautiful vista of housetops and chimney-pots, with the Pantheon and the pavilions of Louvre, met our gaze. "Any letters?" repeated Jules, as Mme. Jacques, the porteress, replied to the salutation.

The good dame smoothed down her apron, adjusted her cap, and having assumed an air of profound woe and commiseration, produced a letter, deeply edged with black.

"Ah, I fear monsieur will have bad news!" said the little woman, "for I am sure such letters always tell of some one's death."

Jules took the letter, and was soon deeply engaged in reading its contents.

"Read it, mon ami, and tell me shall I laugh or weep?" said he, having read the letter, and handing it to me.

"My dear aunt," he resumed, "peace be with her, whom I have not seen for ten years, has died—therefore should I weep; but she has left me ten thousand francs a year. Therefore I shall neither weep nor laugh; so we will dine at the Trois Freres, and drink to my good aunt's rest in their famed Burgundy, for it was her favorite wine, and——"

"Good morning, mamma; how delighted I am to see you!" cried a sweet voice at the door of the lodge, and in another minute the speaker was in the arms of Mme. Jacques.

"My dear child, is it you?" exclaimed madame; "well, well, who would have thought of seeing you back so soon! It is my little Marie, messieurs," said the porteress, her little eyes twinkling with pleasure, in answer to our mute inquiries.

Marie turned, and bestowing on us a roguish glance made a profound bow.

"Come, come, Jule," said I, grasping his arm, for he stood rooted to the spot, gazing at the blushing Marie; "come, mon ami, I long to taste the Burgundy," said I, fairly pulling him to the door.

"Good morning, ladies," I added, and we were on our way down the street.

"I verily believe you have fallen in love," I continued. "Come, old fellow, it won't do for Jules de Quenville, with ten thousand francs a year, to fall in love with a porter's daughter. But Marie is handsome. Did you notice what bewitching eyes she had? and as for her hands, they were as small and white as those of a dutchess! I am sure she has a fine foot and ankle, for her figure is perfect. But I forgot to congratulate you on your good fortune, Jules. "Why, what is the matter? You in the clouds, mon cher."

"No, no, not in the clouds," said Jules. "I was thinking, that is—yes—I was thinking of my poor aunt. But Mlle. Marie is beautiful; you are right; it is a pity she is a porter's daughter."

Having honored the memory of the deceased aunt in a glass of Bugundy, we drank to Marie, and we spoke of Marie, and Marie it was for the whole evening. Even the petit verre with our cafe was emptied in Marie's honor.

Alas, my friend! I saw he was badly off when, for the twentieth time, the next morning he descended the six etages to see if there were any letters; but Marie was not there, and madame was out, so Monsieur Jacques kept house, and Jules' pride would not permit him to ask the old porter concerning her. He was proud, was my friend Jules; of a family of the providences, he had been brought up to regard good birth as one of the essentials which a wife must possess. It is thus with all Frenchmen; notwithstanding the many democratic principles they possess, pride of family is with them as striking as it were under Louis XVI. Through in the ordinary interest of life they forget or lose sight of these principles, yet when the question of marriage is discussed they revive in all their pristine force.

"Yes, mon ami," said Jules, laying aside his pipe, and smoothing his luxuriant moustache and beard, a "now that I am a rich man, I feel it a duty I owe to my family to marry. But my wife must be of good family; and Marie is not. I know what you would say; you English, when you fall in love, forget all social distinction; but we French have more firmness, and can conquer our feelings. We marry for our family, and we grow old and feel happy that we have done a good action. This is true greatness. You English cannot appreciate it."

"Then you'll forget Marie," said I, "and won't see her any more."

"But I will see her again," he replied, "and only speak to her, that I may forget my unfortunate penchant; for you know an illiterate woman disgusts me, and I am sure she is without education."

An hour afterward, as I passed the porter's lodge on my way to the post office, I saw my friend engaged in an animated conversation with Marie.

"Are you disgusted with her, Jules?" I asked on my return that evening.

"I am more in love than ever," he replied; "she is as well-informed and accomplished as she is beautiful; but what would my father say? She is but a porter's daughter."

"Ah," thought I, "he thinks of what his father would say! Assuredly she has gained one point; she has conquered his own pride."

Thus the week passed. Marie was only to be seen in the afternoon; she dressed in a style much above her station, I thought, but she was such a perfect lady that one lost sight of this apparent incongruity. My friend was perfectly enraptured; he spoke and thought of nothing but Marie. The merits of my own sweet little betrothed were quite eclipsed, or rather never mentioned; for when at times I would endeavor to speak of Lizzie, I was interrupted and bored by the name of Marie. I could not blame my friend, nor be angry with him, for heretofore Lizzie's name and merits had formed the staple of our evening's conversation.

One evening we returned home earlier than usual and were surprised to hear the sound of a female voice singing in our rooms. We stopped and listened at the door. It was a love song from the opera of Pre aux Cleres, a favorite of my friend's.

How beautifully she sang!—with what style and execution! She was a finished artiste. We stopped at the door until the last note had died away and was succeeded by a lively valse. Then we entered.

"It is impossible! It can't be!" cried Jules.

But it was Marie, who, rising from the piano as we entered, stood suffused with blushes.

"I beg your pardon, gentlemen, for my presumption in entering your room," she said; "but madame was here arranging them, and I came up to keep her company."

Madame's head, with her twinkling, mischevous little eyes, just then peered forth from the adjoining room, as if in proof of Marie's statement.

"No presumption whatever, mademoiselle; it is an honor," said Jules. "But I beg you will once more sing my favorite sing."

The sun had long since cast its last rays on Montmartre, and madame had a dozen times risen to go, and still Jules and Marie were at the piano. My friend was an accomplished performer at the piano, and an enthusiastic admirer of music. They sang duets and solos without number; and when at last Mme. Jacques said she must go, it was with regret they parted.

The morrow was sunday; we slept longer than usual on that day, and ten o'clock had sounded from a neighboring steeple when Mme. Jacques entered the room with two letters, one for Jules and one for me. Mine was from Lizzie; she was educated in France, and she told me that she intended paying a visit to an old school-fellow of hers, Mlle. Ernond, who resided at the Chateau de Beauville, near Rouen; and, further, that she expected me to pay her an early visit there. I could bring my "double," thus she called my friend, with me. I jumped out of bed, delighted at the prospect of seeing Lizzie so soon, and hurried into Jules' chamber. I found him intently occupied with a little rose-colored billet.

"What! a billet-doux!" said I. "Pray who thus honors you, Monsieur Jules?"

He handed me the note; the writing was delicate and ladylike:

"Monsieur"—thus it ran—"I have to thank you much for the honor and pleasure you have afforded me by your pleasant society. I leave Paris this morning, and have no time to bid you adieu. Receive, therefore, monsieur, my best wishes and believe me, with respect,

"MARIE."

"Well, it is bad news mon ami," said I; "but if you love her, you must find out from madame where she is gone and follow her."

"Ah, madame won't tell me her address!" replied Jules. "She says Marie has forbidden her to do so. She says she is gone to join the family with whom she resides in Normandy."

"But this is superb!" I exclaimed. "Read what Lizzie says. We will be off on Thursday morning; and, having seen Lizzie, I will tell her of your love affair, and I am sure she will aid you, for a woman's wit is sharper than a man's."

Thursday evening found us located in the hall of the Chateau de Beauville. The first raptures of meeting with my Lizzie were over, and we were seated near the fire which burned in the huge chimney. Jules was occupied with Lizzie's friend, Mlla. Ernond, while the rest of the family were variously engaged in other parts of the chateau.

I had determined to speak to Lizzie of Jule's love affair at the earliest opportunity, and this opportunity now presented itself. How her eyes sparkled while I narrated the story and described Marie! I thought she was amused at the idea of the struggles between pride and love that my friend had undergone.

I had scarcely finished speaking when Mlle. Ernond rang; and, when the servant appeared, she desired him to ask Marie to come to her.

"She is my companion," she said, smiling, to Jules; "a very beautiful and interesting girl, I assure you; but, unfortunately, she is only a porter's daughter!"

What! could we have thus fortunately found Marie without a day's search? Yes, sure enough, the door opened, and there stood Marie.

Demure and humble enough was her greeting to us, but her eyes sparkled with an irrepressible fire that stangely affected me; I could not comprehend her. As a lady's companion, she occupied a seat at the table, and I noticed the servants treated her with marked respect.

I need not say with what rapidity the week allotted for our stay had nearly passed. On all possible occasions Jules was the attendant of Marie, and he did not escape the jest and laughter of the company on this account; but he bore them with extraordinary meekness and coolness for one so proud and hot-blooded as I knew him to be.

One day Lizzie and I were seated in an arbor in the garden; she had consented to fix an earlier day for our wedding, and we were discussing our marriage arangements, when suddenly we heard footsteps approaching, and Jules said: "Nay, Marie, believe me, I love you truly and dearly; can you return my love, and be my wife?"

"Can you, then, really sacrifice your principles, and brave your father's displeasure, by marrying a porter's daughter?" she asked.

"Trust me, Marie, my false pride is all gone," he replied. "I love you devotedly, and ask you to be my wife."

The answer I could not hear, for they had passed on toward the chateau.

"Well, Jules, I involuntarily heard your declaration of love to-day," said I, when the family had retired for the night. "What answer did you receive?"

"Congratulate me, my friend," he replied. "She loves me—she told me so; but she would give no positive answer about the marriage, she said; she must speak to her friends first; it is a duty she owes them."

The next morning, at breakfast, the unpleasing intelligence was given us that Marie had left the chateau, and left nothing to tell of her whereabouts, or reasons for so doing. Mlle. Ernond appeared rather offended, but forgot her ill-humor when she was told that her cousin, Mlle. Beauville, had just arrived.

The sadness which had seized poor Jules when he heard of Marie's departure was noticed by all, and there was many a laugh at his expense, when the door opened, and Mlle. de Beauville was announced. Could it be possible? Why the lady who entered was certainly Marie.

"Jules, Jules," I cried involuntarily to my friend, who had forgotten his accustomed politeness, or did not hear the lady announced, for he remained at the table without turning, "Jules, is not this Marie!"

Before he could rise from his chair she stood before him, and gave him her hand. "I have spoken to my friends," she said, "and they are satisfied, Jules—therefore I will be your wife."

In an instant she was in his arms closely clasped to his heart.

"But they announced Marie as Mlle. de Beauville," I said to Lizzie.

"Yes, it is true, mensieur," cried Marie, freeing herself from Jules' embrace. "I am the heiress de Beauville, and not the porter's daughter."

"How could you impose on our credulity in such a manner?" I asked.

"Mme. Jacques is my foster mother," she replied. "and she calls me her daughter. When I met you it was an accident and madame having called me her child, I determined to allow you to retain the belief that such was the case, for I felt interested in Jules, and soon found he loved me; and having discovered that you were the lover of my old friend Lizzie, I made a plan to meet you here and give Jules a trial to test his affection for me, for I have learned from Lizzie to wish for a husband that would love me for myself." She hid her blushing face in Jules' bosom for a moment, and then asked: "Have you nothing to say Jules? You won't be angry with me for deception I have practised, will you?"

"No, no, Marie, I am too happy, he replied, "I only ask that Lizzie's bridal day may be also ours."

And thus it was settled. Jules and I are now happy husbands; and when the late war broke out, Jules and his wife came to reside near us in England.

Miscellaneous.

A Romantic Story from Across the Continent.

On Saturday evening Justice Sutton's office was the scene of the termination of a most romanic affair. A young and very pretty girl, named Miss Alameda Cosgrove, residing at San Diego, last Summer responded to an advertisement in the Waverly Magazine for a correspondence with a view to matrimony. The new correspondent of the young lady resided at Wathena, Kansas, and represented himself as a merchant, young, wealthy, honest, and in want of a wife. A long and loving correspondence ensued between Jerome Markham and Miss Cosgrove. Photographs were exchanged and Miss Cosgrove was delighted to find her unseen lover a good-looking youth. Finally, she consented to become Mrs. Markham, and for economy's sake consented to come to Wathena to be married. Being an orphan and without restraint, she took the Central Pacific about two week ago and started for Kansas. All went well until she got on the Denver Pacific. After leaving Cheyenne the train struck a drift ten feet high and 300 yards in length, and became hopelessly stuck fast. While snow-bound near Crow Creek, Colorado, Miss Cosgrove attracted the attention of Mr. Julius Emmet, a commission agent of this city, who, perceiving the young lady seated alone and evidently unprovided for such an emergency, very gallantly tendered such assistance as was in his power to give, which was a valise full of cold food and two buffalo robes. The young couple were soon on friendly, social terms. Miss Cosgrove very naively recited her wild adventures, and was rewarded by Emmet informing her that he was single, &c. By the time the Kansas Pacific train had crossed the plains and was winding its way over the fertile praries of Kansas, the young folks were firm friends. They parted with regret at Wathena, when the young lady turned to meet for the first time him she was to call her husband. She had only a moment to wait before a rough-looking individual, at least forty years of age, made himself known as her correspondent and expectant husband. Miss Cosgrove, finding she had been deceived turned without a word and entered the car and came to Kansas City. The following brief item in last Sunday's Times gives the sequel:

MARRIED.—Last evening, at the office of Justice Sutton, on Fifth street, Miss Cosgrove, of San Diego, Cal., to Mr. Julius Emmet, of Kansas City.

The Blair-Schurz row is more bitter then ever. Anything to beat the other is the motto of each.

The October Elections and the South.

The October elections are full of significance for every section of the country, for they notoriously turned on national issues. But they possess peculiar meaning for the South, and no portion of the Republic can take their lesson to heart with more certain profit. In the October elections we include not only those in the three Western and one great Middle State, which declared their unfaltering adheasion to the Republican Party and its principles, but the election in Georgia as well, in which a coalition victory was made to assume a greater magnitude by fraud and violence. The Georgia election came first, and we trust the people of the South clearly understand that the history of that election contributed very largely to the result in those that followed. The declaration emphatically made by the voters who rolled up the heavy majorities for the Republican Party in the Northern States, is that the party in whose interest and with whose connivance the Georgia outrages were perpetrated can never obtain control of the National Government. The change in its candidates, the assumption of the "Liberal" platform, the cloak of professed abandonment of its previous professions, are of no avail. Perhaps the Republican Party will at some future time be dissolved and its place be assumed by a new organization; but so long as it is the party representing equality and freedom throughout the whole country, and its opponents show by their acts that these ends are not sincerely sought by them, so long the Republican Party will be kept in power, and its rival's claims will be steadily and firmly rejected.

The elections of Tuesday last are a distinct protest against the deceptive doctrine of reconciliation with a class who themselves remain still unreconciled to the fundamental principles established by the war. Secession was not the only ruinous heresy destroyed by the war; the atrocious idea that one class in a republic can deprive another class of their equal rights—the main heresy for which the minor one of secession was asserted and maintained in the field—was also doomed. And the American people, when they placed the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments in the Constitution, recorded their solemn determination to resist both by the whole force of the nation. They have now conceded to those lately in arms every right of citizenship; but they will not admit that class to power in the National Government until the old hostility to equal rights is practically and completely renounced. No pretention of reconciliation will be anything but a hollow political device until that inevitable, unalterable condition is complied with.

This fact presents a clear case of duty to really patriotic and intelligent Southern men. It shows them at once that the violence and extreme injustice of the Georgia Democrats is as vain as it is in bad faith, and that the candid support of Republican principles is the only possible means of setting all questions growing out of the war at rest, and restoring their section to perfect accord with the active, prosperous, growing States of the Union. Is there any reason why this support should not be rendered with entire self-respect? The question is answered by hundreds of the ablest and most public-spirited men

TO OUR READERS

I am glad to announce—and I know the reader will be glad to hear,—that Dr. JOHN and family have returned from their extended Western trip well and happy. This relieves me from my pro tem connection with the NORTH CAROLINIAN. In severing this short time relation between us as editor and reader, I will, for fear of being too prolix if attempting any originalitiy, adopt the language of another, and say, "that if in my brief though brilliant career I have said anything which has offended anyone let him give me a new hat and I will say no more about it."

J. H. SHAW,
his-Valedictory.

After an absence of five weeks, during which time we have traveled over two thousand miles through the States of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and enjoyed ourself as a man mingling with the large hearted people of the great West cannot fail to do, we find ourself back in the "chair editorial" again. We came too late, however, to prepare much matter for this issue, and we find an accumulated amount of correspondence and business that will require at least a week to "catch up."

The gentleman who so kindly acted as Editor pro-tem during our vacation has our grateful acknowledgements for the able and faithful manner in which he performed the duties and met the responsibilities thrust upon him. The friends of the CAROLINIAN have been edified and we are more than satisfied. As he is a modest man we will merely add: Should anybody take exceptions to anything he has felt called upon to write, that the "rheumatism" afflicting him when he entered our sanctum is—very much better! Editorial work evidently agrees with him.

From some unaccountable cause several letters we had written and mailed at different points in our course of travel never reached this office. In them we had jotted down our impressions of the people, the country, the agriculture, the manufactures, the commerce, the schools and the politics of the growing, expanding, progressive West. In our next issue will give our readers an article on the subject.

We come back to our work invigorated, refreshed, encouraged. Everywhere we found the popular sentiment demonstrating in favor of sustaining the faithful and patirotic Administration of President GRANT, and this insures for us in the South not only law and order but peace and prosperity. Everything we saw has tended to make our conviction stronger than ever that Nature has done more for us here in Eastern Carolina than for the West, and that half the capital with the same spirit and energy characterizing the Western people can make this country much the more prosperous and our inhabitants more independent and wealthy.

THE EDITOR.

The triumphant election of our old friend Gen. HARTRANFT in Pennsylvania ought to teach a certain class of politicians a useful lesson. It ought to satisfy them that their coarse and savage methods of carrying on a campaign reacts on themselves. The baseness of the assaults made on the new Governor elect of the Keystone State is only equalled by the rebuke they have received at the people's hands.

The State Fair was held at Raleigh last week. It is reported a success.

IF

There is a mine of truth in the old saying, "If wishes were horses, then beggars might ride." When "the well laid plans of men gang agale," we at once seek for relief in that apparently small, and most insignificant word—"if." It is so with everything. When we fail in any of the pursuits and enterprises of life, we at once become prolific in "ifs," and explain our mishaps by showing, that if such and such things hadn't happened, or, if such and such things had turned out as we supposed they would, our misfortune would have had its front syllable lopped off. Sometimes these contretemps in others cause us sorrow and pain, and again, they present to us a picture of chaotic consusion which appeals only to our sense of the ludicrous. The man who earnestly, and persistently, but with becoming modesty, sets out in any legitimate pursuit, and labors for the accomplishment of any legitimate undertaking, and fails, is entitled to our sincere sympathy and commiseration, and when he pours into our ears his "ifs," and "whys," we feel sorry for him, for we know that in his case—

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen,
The saddest are these—it might have been."

But, when a man overating his own strength and importance, and having a contemptuous opinion of the obstacles in his way, goes forth with a great flourish of trumpets, to "organize" a victory, and command success and returns beaten and disgraced, we feel that only righteous judgement has been pronounced on him, and there is within us no feeling akin to pity. We have ever made it a rule of life to extend to another all that we claim for ourselves in the line of honesty of purpose. We know that the best of us are liable to err, and, in the absence of convincing proof to the contrary, we are always willing to believe that the man who differ from us, does so honestly and without sinister motives. But, if that man is loud mouthed in asserting the justice of his career, and correspondingly bitter and vicious in denouncing the justice of others, then in the event of the triumph of our principles, we take, it may be, a savage satisfaction in his downfall. As with men so with parties.

When the Democratic Hippodrome started out on its perambulations about the country, and with flaming placards advertised itself as the great moral show, announcing as its cheif attraction, a Democrat and Republican joined together like the Siamese Twins, and with its evening dramatic representation of that side splitting farce entitled, "Shaking hands across the bloody chasm;" we confess we almost held our breath. And when the caravan filed past with its gorgeous pagentry, with band playing, and colors flying, surrounded with all the paraphernalia of such exhibitions including the ring masters" and "clowns;" we stood gazing upon it in mute astonishment. But when they finally pitched their tents, and the canvass of the side shows were erected, and the little attendant "organs" began to grind out old stale music, and the clowns began to grind out old stale jokes, we began to think that it wasn't much of a show, "no how," and when we heard that lightening had struck the menagerie in Pennsylvania on the eighth of the present month, we frankly confess that we weren't at all sorry. We never should rejoice in the misfortunes of others, except when those very misfortunes tend to public or private good. This is our reason for rejoicing over the downfall and annihilation of that most gigantic political burlesque and imposition—the Democratic Liberal Republican "Wooly Horse." But to return to our text. Now that everything has gone to smash with them, they are busy among the ruins trying to find something of value, while to each passer by they stop to explain that if the storm hadn't struck them, and if there had been no lightening to shiver them, and——but the people hurry by believing it to be a just visitation of Providence, leaving the ruined mongrel to open on some fresh subject with his eternal—If.

EDITORIAL TALK WITH THE READER.

FARMS AND FARMING.—NO. 2.)

In considering this question of farm investment as it presents itself to the practical farmer, let us premise by saying that it is not designed as a means of speculation for the acquirement of sudden wealth; but rather as a property from which is to be derived a fair substantial annuity. Speculations, considered as monetary channels, are like the mountain stream easily excited, and when operated upon by sudden storms becoming torrents sweeping onward with resistless force, and often carrying ruin and destruction in their wild journey. Legitimate farming on the contrary is the steady quiet current of the majestic river, little affected by sudden freshets but increasing its volume by gradual augmentation. The man then who joins the noble army of tillers of the soil must have no undue ambition for immediate wealth, but must be content to build up his wealth by the slower and safer system of accretion. That the Great First Cause designed this to be so is evident from the regularity and uniformity of natures dealings with Agriculture. There is no year in which seed refuses to germinate; No season in which the life giving properties are withheld. "The rain falls upon the just and unjus.t" The warm rays of the sun permeate the earth, and gentle breezes fan the lands of all alike. Each season brings its wealth of earths products to cheer and repay the prudent husbandman. It is also equally true that the farmer has before him a life of toil, but this should in no way alarm or deter him. The world is but a busy hive and all are expected, and commanded to do something. The Divine command given to our first parent has extended to each of us, and he who does not obey that command is a drone in the hive, a bummer and a nuisance in life's busy workshop. Farm labor judiciously performed is only that exercise which our physical natures demand, and its physical results are in strange contrast with the influence which vexatious brain labor exerts on the human frame. In joining the solid phalanx of natures yeomanry remember then that——

"He who by his farm would thrive
Must either hold the plow or drive."

Not only must the practical farmer be prudent and industrious, but he must be possessed of good common sense, which must be brought into immediate use. Head work, as well hand work is required. We have no fear of being disputed, when we say that we have too little brain discipline in farming. Not that farmers as a class have lessintelligence than others, but, that they have never been taught to bring their intelligence into requisition in conducting their farming operations. Mechanics serve a regular apprenticeship before undertaking any work in their line. Professional men spend long years bending over their books, studying the theories, and acquainting themselves with the sciences which they propose to reduce to practice, and then pass through a further tuition, by commencing to practice their profession under the immediate supervision of their precepters! But the farmer, entirely uneducated in the science of tilling the earth, purchases a quality of land, and begins operations. He knows nothing about the chemical qualities of the soil, or seed, but goes on blindly, plowing and sowing, and then if he fails of a good crop, blames "Nature," or "Providence," or curses his bad "luck," according to his moral training. Is it strange that he fails? It would be strange indeed if he succeeded. The same training, or rather the same want of training in any other vocation, would make a man a laughing stock for all. We say to the farmer then—gather information from every accessible source, and treasure it up in your mental store house ready for use at any time; and to accomplish this, take some agricultural paper, converse with your intelligent neighbor, compare notes with him, and take the benefit of his practical wisdom, carefully note, and remember the result of each year's operations, and profit by your experience, and soon your lands will bring you their rich harvests; happiness will be within your walls, and abundance within your garners.

THE QUAKER INDIAN POLICY.

We clip the following from the St. Louis Democrat. It is from the pen of our distinguished friend Dr. NICHOLSON, a prominent Quaker and a former citizen of Perquimans County. He supports the Republican nominees because they are prime men and because Gen. GRANT inaugurated the christian policy of meeting the Red Man with the Bible in one hand and Bread in the other:

LAWRENCE, KANSAS.,
Ninth Month 23d, 1872.

To the Editor of the Democrat:

As a subscriber to The Daily Democrat, I would like to know why thee takes so much pleasure in ridiculing the efforts of the Quakers in civilizing Indians. Thee has had no less than two editorial paragraphs recently upon the subject of pantaloons. Perhaps by the time thee regales us with a few more of the same sort, thee will be willing to give us thy authority for asserting that the Quaker agents have furnished Indians with pantaloons, and that the latter have agonized the hearts of "the honest decendents of Wm. Penn," by a ruthless severance of the garments. The annuity goods purchased by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, (who was not a Quaker,) three or four years ago, for the Indians near Fort Sill, included some pantaloons. But the Quaker Indian Agent Tatum, at once promptly recommended that no more garments of that character be sent to his agency. Yet thee give a very different version to the story. Let us have more facts and less fun. The Quakers are working honestly in accordance with the request of President Grant. Thee is not promoting his re-election by a heartless ridicule of his Indian policy, which has been more successful than any hitherto tried.

WM. NICHOLSON.

ETHAN ALLEN—not the noted trotting horse, or the hero of Ticonderoga, but a man who signs himself—"Chairman National Committee Liberal Republicans," is out in a flaming address, which he denominates "an appeal to the electors of the United States." It is a fine display of rhetoric, gotten up entirely regardless of expense, and will probably result in stirring up the political pool, until it is as roily as a mudpuddle. It is peculiarly Democratic in its "git up," formed largely of such words as "fraud," "bribery," "dishonesty," "polution," "repeaters," and there synonyms. There are a few more words evidently not contained in Ethans vocabulary, which he might rent for a little while, and use to advantage, and we mildly suggest that he procure some, of—say JOE TURNER, BRICK POMROY, or such billingsgate slingers. But the said appeal is not only rough on the Grant boys, but it is eminently high flown, and well rounded: commencing every paragraph with "my countrymen." Ethan is a sly dog—a mighty sharp fellow, and well knew that ordinary flesh and blood could never stand such an affectionate reminder of common national maternity. Had he merely used such terms as "friends," "gentlemen," and the like, it might not have been so disastrous to us. Then his diction is so elegant, it really reminds us of Ossians address to the sun. But rest quietly Ethan, and remember the story of the little dog that barked at the moon, and be warned by the terrible result of the moons getting scared and stopping.—"Rash man desist."

EX-GOV. CURTIN, of Pennsylvania, was severely rebuked by the people for his apostacy. He was nominated by the Lib-Dem-Party as a candidate for delegate at large to the Constitutional Convention. He ran 7,262 votes behind his ticket!!

FORNEY thought his great influence would elect BUCKALEW Governor of Pennsylvania. The result proved otherwise—indeed his own ward, largely Democratic heretofore gave 382 majority for Gen. HARTRANFT. Was there ever a severer rebuke administered?

CALDWELL saved the State: GRANT has saved the Nation.

It is more than probable that the intended visit of Hon. Horace Greeley to this State will be prevented by the sickness of his wife.—Raleigh News.

A friend suggests that it is quite as likely he is prevented by his own sickness caused by the October elections!

Not a day passes but we hear of prominent and well known Democrats who are disgusted with GREELEY and who are determined to go for GRANT. The Democratic party destroyed itself by nominating "Old HORACE."

The lesson of the October elections is plain and simple. It is that the great questions settled by the high arbitrament of the sword shall remain settled—that the treasure and blood and life spent and sacrificed shall not be in vain. It means that the Constitution shall be respected, the laws obeyed and every man from one end of the Republic to the other protected in the right to vote as well as worship with none to molest or make him afraid.

Alas, poor GREELEY! He and his friends now realize the hopelessness of their office broker's enterprize. Their "personal magnetism" hypothesis was given its quietus by our own North Carolina. The "white hat" theory disappeared in Vermont. The "tidal wave" fizzled shockingly in Maine. The "prarie fire" business was quenched in Indiana and that lost stock in trade left the office beggars—the "bloody chasm" scattered over Pennsylvania and Ohio was fill-ed up in the October elections. The apostle of spoilation has but one one course left, after anathematizing as he will, in his choicest epithets, all prarie fires, white hats, tidle waves and bloody chasms, and that is retire to the shades of Chappaqua and turn his attention to beats!

It beats all how many local attachments "good old HORACE GREELEY" cherishes. Wherever he went in New England he was in love not only with the people but with the locality. The very rocks were sweet to his thoughts and in their barrenness his soul found delight. And then, as his setting star moved Westward, the same spirit possessed him. Even Pittsburg, with its everlasting soot, had a hold upon his affections. "No pluce on this continent,' said he, "has been dearer to me than Pittsburg." Ah, this is more affecting, if possible, than Gen. SCOTT's love for "the rich Irish brouge."

"May it be written on my grave that I never was a follower of the Democratic party, and livedand died in no way its debtor."—Horace Greeley, in Tribune Almanac of 1872, defining his position as a Whig.

And he will thus die unless, after he is most terribly beaten in November, he feels that he owes the party something for placing him in a position before the country in a way to show the world and satisfy even himself what a weak old man he really is!

The South Carolina election held on the 16th resulted in favor of the Republicans. The "bolters" were beaten.

New Books, Periodicals, &c.

LIPPINCOTT:—The November issue of Lippincott's Magazine is one of unusual interest. The initial article, entitled "From the Field to the Fireside," is an attractive and popular description of the manufacturo of straw paper, from the growth of the stalk in the fields to its appearance as a newspaper at the family fireside. This contribution is replete with useful and plessing information, couched in a terse and easy style. The illustrations which accompany it are numerous and well executed. "The London Season" forms the caption of a very entertaining sketch, by Reginald Wynford, touching the manners and personages of aristocratic society in London at the present day. Liuely and truthful portraitures of some of the most famous leaders, such as Lady Molesworth and Lady Weldgrave, are given, coupled with anecdotes and gossip of an engaging character. "A Mission to Costa Rica," by the late R. M. Walsh, offers a variety of well written delneations of scenery and society in Central America. Hon, George H. Boker's "Monody on T. Buchanan Read" is a touching and dignified tribute of respect from one American poet to the memory of another. Judge Barnwell's article on "Toxpedoes" presents a number of interesting facts concerning the history and use of torpedoes as engines of war and dwells especially upon the methods and results of their emdloyment during our late war. "Sketches of Southern Life," by T. C. de Leon, a bounds in graphic and lively notes upon the peculiar characters of life in the South, and opens to the reader views of social and domestic customs rarely presented in our periodical literature. "Minor Shows," by Charles Dawson Shanly, giues a description of those devices for exciting popular wonder and ministering to popular amusement, which in various sections of the country, have from time to time obtained prominence or elicited special attention. The subject possesses the charms of novelty, and is well treated. The series of papers upon "The Private Art Collections of Philadelphia" is approaching its close. The gallery described in the present number is that Professor Fairman Rogers. All the papers of this series have been marked by rare critical ability, and by a delicacy and finish of style quite unusual. "Our Monthly Gossip" is crowded with excellent matter, and offers a most palatable miscellany. The contributions to fiction in this issue of Lippincot's are numerous, and of a high order of merit. Chief among them are chapters 27-29 of Mr. Black's seria. novel, The Strange Adxentures of a Phaeton;" "Aimee's Story," by Ita Aniol Prokop; "In the Dark," by Kate Putnam Osgood; and "A Modern Philosopher," by Jeannette R. Hadermann. Emma Lazarus contributes a poem entitled "Expectations."

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK FOR NOVEMBER, 1872.—The November number is presented to the public as one of especial interest to all classes. We have here fashions for those who desire them; literature of a character calculated to adorn the mind and make home a paradise, with instructions in everything that make up the pleasures of a happy fireside. The beautiful steel and wood engravings are something to look upon.

We understand that the announcement of GODEY in his October number that he will give a Chromo to every subscriber for the year 1873 has created a sensation throughout the country. His well-known reputation of fulfilling, and in fact exceeding, all his promises, has led the reading public to look for something extra in the Chromo line. And they will not be disappointed. Those who have seen the early proofs of "Our Darling" speaker of it with the highest praise, and as far surpassing anything before offered by publishers.

The Condition of the National Debt of the United States—Further Reduction, Oct. 1, $10,327,030.

The undersigned, merchants, bankers, and business men of New York, respectfully submit the following statements for the information of all parties interested therein.

The Republican candidate for President of the United States is Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, who was unanimously named for re-election at Philadelphia, in May last.

At the commencement of Gen. Grant's first term of office, March 4, 1869, the National Debt was $2,525,000,000. On the first day of September, of the present year, there had been paid and canceled of the principal of this debt, $358,000,000, leaving a balance of principal remaing unpaid at that date, in accordance with the official statement of the Secretary of the Treasury, the sum of $2,177,000,000.

Of this amount $1,777,000,000 are represented in a funded debt, bearing interest in gold, while $400,000,000 remain unfunded in Treasury circulation.

Up to the close of the last session of Congress the annual reduction of taxes, as measured by the rates of 1869, had been as follows:

Internal revenue tax	$82,000,000
Income tax (repealed)	30,000,000
Duties on imposts	58,000,000
Making a total reduction of	$170,000,000

The reduction of the yearly interest on the public debt exceeds the sum of $23,200,000, of which $21,743,000 are saved by the purchase and cancellation of the six per cent. public securities.

A careful consideration of these results of prudent and faithful administration of the National Treasury, induces the undersigned to express the confident belief that the general welfare of the country, the interest of its commerce and trade, and the consequent stability of its public securities would be best promoted by the re-election of Gen. Grant to the office of President of the United States.

(Signed by the leading business men of New York.)

New York, Oct, 4, 1872.

Patriotic Gems from the President.

The policy of the Administration to be a thorough enforcement of every law.

A faithful collection of the taxes.

Economy in the disbursement of the same, and a prompt payment of the debt of the nation.

A reduction of taxes as rapidly as the requirements of the country will admit.

Reduction of taxation and tariff to be so arranged as to afford the greatest relief to the greatest number.

Honest and fair dealings with all other people, to the end that war, with all its blighting consequences, may be avoided, without surrendering any right or obligation due to the United States.

A reform in the treatment of the Indians, and the whole civil service of the country.

A pure, untrammeled ballot, where every man entitled to cast a vote may do so just once at each election, without fear of molestation or proscription on account of his political faith, nativity or color.

I care nothing for promotion so long as our arms are successful.

This is a republic, where the will of the people is the law of the land.

Human liberty is the only true foundation of human government.

Let us have peace.

Tell your boys they can take their horses home with them to help make their crops.—[Gen. Grant to Gen. Lee.

Gen, Lee and his officers and troops, who have been paroled, cannot be arrested and tried for treason. I protest against their arrest, and if Gen. Lee and his comrades are arrested I will resign. —[Gen. Grant to President Johnson.

National Thanksgiving.

PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT.

WASHINGTON, October 11—The following was issued to day:

"By the President of the United States of America—A proclamation; Whereas the revolution of another year has again brought the time when it is usual to look back upon the past and publicly thank the Almighty for his mercies and his blessings; and, whereas, if any one people has more occasion than another for such thankfulness, it is the citizens of the United States, whose government in their creature subject to their behests, who have reserved to themselves ample civil and religious freedom and equality before the law; who, during the last twelve months have enjoyed exemption from any grievous or general calamity, and to whome prosperity in agriculture, manufactures, and commerce has been vouchsafed: Now therefore, by reason of these considerations, I recommend that on Thursday, the 28th day of November next, the people meet in their respective places of worship and there make their acknowledgments to God for his kindness and bounty. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this 11th day of October, in the year of our Lord 1872, and of the Independence of the United States, the 96th.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT.
By the President:
HAMILTON FISH, Secretary of State.

Mr. Greeley is a great lover of beet-root sugar. He is even now engaged at Chappaqua extracting sweetness out of the fall beats.—Chicago Post.

A Social Family Reunion.

There was a social family reunion on Sabbath day, the 22nd inst., at the residence of Elida John, in Jordan, consisting of Elida and Sarah H. John, (the father and mother,) six sons, four daughters, three sons-in-law, five daughters-in-law, and twenty one grandchildren—all being present save three granddaughters, one grand son-in-law, and one great-grand-child.

Of these present, Dr. P. John, editor of the NORTH CAROLINIAN, wife and daughter are from Elizabeth City, N. C., Morris A. Wilson, wife and child, are from Magnolia, Putnam Co., and Edwin John and family reside in Palmyra, Lee Co., Ills. The rest are residents of Jordan. The absent ones are the daughters, son-in-law, and grandchild of Dr. P. John of N. C. The son-in-law Wm. R. Cobb is Chaplain and Professor of Ethics in the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. Such a reunion had never before taken place in the family, and probably never will again. The sons and daughters had not all been at home at the same time before in probably twenty years.

The father took the occasion to talk very feelingly to them, giving them good wholesome advice. May such reunions often occur.—Sterling (Ills.,) Gazette.

The flourishing and sinking Tribune continues to rave about "election frauds," as accounting for the ill success of its political friends, not less in Pennsylvania in October, than in Maine and North Carolina in September and August. In this expression of rage and disappointment, however, we recognize merely a familiar periodical sound. For forty years past, Spring and Fall, that paper has sung the song of ever-repeated and ever increasing frauds at the elections. But at the present time, it is with this remarkable difference—the offenders now are the Republicans, whereas heretofore they have always been the Democrats—the Republicans and old-time Whigs being ever the defrauded and suffering party. How the injured innocents of the Democratic fraternity must laugh in their sleeves to hear the Tribune denouncing the Republicans for the grave offense it has always heretofore had at their own doors?

The most conspicuous office-beggar in the land has been making another electioneering harangue, in which he declared that there are twenty thousand disfranchised citizens in Arkansas. When the veracious sage first took the stump for himself, he put down the number of disfranchised in Arkansas at two thousand. In the course of two weeks he increased the statement to five thousand. Now he has got up to twenty thousand! If he keeps on gabbling he will have a couple of millions of unhappy disfranchised people in Arkansas by November. The plain truth is that there are probably not twenty men in Arkansas who are disfranchised by the Congressional disability act, and not two thousand by State action, with which the Federal Government has no right to meddle.—Chicago Times.

It is related as a singular circumstance that the owner of the farm on which Lee surrendered also owned the farm on which the first battle of Bull Run, July 18, 1861, was fought. Fleeing from the might of the Union armies, he found in Appomattox, as he thought, a place to which they would never penetrate, and there, by a singular chance, witnessed the downfall of the Confederacy.

There are 22,500 rag-pickers in Paris, who gathered up every night, according to statistics, 50,000 baskets full of rags and thrown away garments and boots.

A DRUG STORE WORTH SEEING

To the Editor of the North Carolinian

During a recent visit to your little City I was among other things attracted by the new Drug Store of Dr. J. N. BUTT, No. 75 Road Street, and I cannot resist the impulse to ask your readers to call and see it, as it is not surpassed by any you will meet in the South, nor is it more will you find one more elegantly fitted up, except its deficiency in gas lights which the Doc or hopes to supply soon. It is a two story brick building, 65 by 25 feet with dwelling above. The lower story is divided into Dispensing Room, Office, Ware Room and Laboratory. The Store Room is very light. The front being entirely of plate glass, nine pieces 90 inches long, with two doors and one window, glass 56 x 90. The doors being double, shut one upon the other, and when open, as in summer, are folded back into a recess to the wall, making a straight line with the door and an elegant finish. The doors and flanges to the same being of plate glass, 10 inches long, does not impede the light open or shut. The floor is almost even with the pavement and is covered with a carpet of cocoa matting. There are two counters on either side, 12 feet long, beautifully white splendidly finished and of cool oaken with Italian marble tops. Their ends 2 feet from the doors, pass at right angle to the wall. On the right hand one is a Tennessee Marble Fountain, and on the other an Aquarium of Gold and other Fish. On either side between the door and counter, is a fine silver mounted walnut Show Case, 5 feet high, fastened to the wall a beautiful and attractive ornament to Display Fancy Articles, and in the rear a Poison Case of the same kind. To see find silver mounted and one plate glass Prescription Case, with scroll and clock on top, and one fine balance scale adorn the counters. There are over 120 drawers which make a fine display, they are of sweet gum varnished which is the prettiest wood that could be used. The shelves are supported on by iron brackets, at the termines of which, 3 feet from the ceiling, is a snow white cornice finer lined with two strips of gilt moulding. The wall and entire store is pure white except the drawers and shelves, which is a very pleasing display. Last but not least, in the title jewell of an office, which is so much needed by every business man, the Doctor is doing, as he tells us, an extensive and lucrative office practice. He has fitted up in fine style, with every modern device and examinations are made with as much privacy as in your own home. The Laboratory is not yet finished, but when done we will be a very responsible part of the establishment. The Doctor keeps a large stock of goods pertaining to the Drug Trade.

A LARGE AND VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.

The subscriber desiring to lessen his farming operations, offers for sale privately, until the 17th December next, and if not sold at that time, at public auction on the premises at 12 o'clock M. that valuable and productive plantation, a part of the far-famed "Turkey Ridge Bouy" known as the Wilkes place containing by estimate One Thousand and Ninety acres. This farm is one of the most productive in North Carolina, and in the hands of an enterprising and industrious farmer could be made a most profitable and paying investment. It is beautifully adapted to all the crops of this climate, corn, wheat, oats, cotton, peas, potatoes, fruits, clover and the grasses generally. It is convenient to navigation, the main barn which is nearly in the centre of the farm being only two and a half miles from a landing on Perquimans River. The buildings are in good order, and there is a sufficiency for eight or ten families to be comfortable, with an abundance of fire wood and rail timber. The fences and ditches are in complete order, nearly every ditch on the premises either having been trimmed and cent out this fall, or now being done so. In addition to the open land, there is a large Deadening of One Hundred and Fifty acres ready to come into cultivation, and in quality not to be surpassed by any in the State. The owner who resides about five miles below it in Durants Neck will take pleasure in showing it and pointing out its advantages to any parties who may desire to examine it until the day of sale.

TERMS: Three Thousand Dollars Cash and the remainder in equal installments of one; two, three and four years with interest at 8 per cent., and the title retained until the money is paid.

After the sale will be offered Twenty (20) mules and horses besides cattle, hogs, farming utensels, corn, fodder, &c. Terms made known on day of sale.

THIS WEEK'S ADVERTISEMENTS.

We call attention to the following new advertisements in this issue:

"New Goods"

Meeting of the Board of Trustees of the University.

Wanted.

Court Notice.

Local and Personal.

☞Gold is reported at 1.12.

☞Kept busy—the Cotton Gins.

☞The "Local Port Folio" will be resumed next week.

☞Sheriff WOOD is making very neat improvements to his new building.

☞Hon. T. J. JARVIS has removed from Tyrrell County to Greenville, Pitt County.

☞Some people forget that it costs more to revenge wrongs than to bear them.

☞Judicious advertising pays better than any other investment a business man can make.

☞Large amounts of Cotton is now being shipped from this Port.

☞Terribly "down in the mouth"—the Greeleyites. They have good reason for feeling discouraged.

☞C. W. SMITH & Co., are erecting a new store building near the old site of the Land & Lumber Co. The new firm mean "business."

☞That pencil sent with the compliments of Dr. D. T. KREBS & Co., is neat and handy. They have more of the same sort left at their Drug Store.

☞A great improvement—the new front of C. B. BROTHER'S block near the canal on Road Street.

☞Our Presidential Elector Dr. RANSOM is doing excellent service. He is proving more than a match for his competitor.

☞Hon. J. W. BEASLY has been appointed U. S. Gauger for this Congressional District. A good appointment.

☞Federal Court is in session here this week. The attendance is not very large.

☞Our town is growing and prospering. New buildings are still going up.

☞Hon. C. L. COBB is addressing the people of Forsythe, Stokes, Surry, Yadkin, Davie and Davidson Counties on the political issues of the day.

☞Among the Northern arrivals since our last is W. BACHE Esq., and F. D. BUNNEL Jr., and Lady, of Wellsboro, Pa.

☞The fence around the Fair Ground is now being put up. From what we have seen Mr. MORGAN, the contracter, is making a good job of it.

☞We call special attention to the mercantile Card of LISTER & TOWE. They have a very nice store and they are gentlemen who will do the fair thing.

☞The Cotton crop is larger this season than has ever been raised in this County before. Price four and a half cents.

☞We are glad to welcome our friend and townsman H. B. COLEMAN back again. He has been spending some time in Wilmington.

☞We are glad to learn that our friend L. G. PARSONS in connection with Mr. JACKSON has opened a Meat Market on Road Street. Mr. PARSONS understands his business.

☞"Do you prefer Newport, this season?" asked a wife of her husband. "No, ma'm," said the husband. "I prefer old port." The wife smiled, and so did her husband, soon after.

☞Our Devil says he is prepared to answer the question: Why is a young man kissing his sweetheart like eating soup with a fork? It is because it takes a long time get enough.

☞How often it is the case that those who fail in argument resort to abuse. And some people attempt to explain things they themselves do not understand. The safest rule is to first understand, then argue.

☞The "quo animo" question is thus mournfully and tearfully explained and settled:

The animo quo dear brother JOE
Is simply this we'd have you know
We're sorry that we used you so
Do please forgive us.—boo, hoo, hoo.

☞THOMAS A. SYKES Esq. has been appointed Assistant Assessor of the 5th District of Tennessee and his address will in future be Nashville, Tenn. We wish Mr. SYKES prosperity in his new field of labor.

☞The Fair at Norfolk is now in progress. Several of our citizens are in attendance. We regret the illnes of W. W. KENNEDY, the worthy President of the Albemarle Agricultural Society prevents his representing us there. We are glad to learn that he is recovering.

☞The practical advice of the sensible old Quaker—and they always give good advice—to his neighbor is exactly to the point. It was: "Always prefer thine own local paper to any other, and subscribe for it immediately. Pay for it in advance and it shall be well with thee and thine."

☞The Plasterers are actively at work on the new Hotel.

☞The corn crop in this locality will be a very fair one. The reports from different sections of the Southern States represent it as very fine almost every where.

☞W. H. SMITH Esq., left for Philadelphia and New York this morning on business. Will be absent some eight or ten days.

☞Had the pleasure of "clasping hands" with quite a number of our friends from other parts of the District this week. They are here attending Federal Court.

☞On the 11th inst., J. B. MORGAN Esq., of Indian Ridge while out on a fowl shooting expedition met with a serious accident—his gun going off and severely injuring his right hand.

☞The "white hat" that was exhibited at the mast head of the schooner "Sue Cummings," of this place on her arrival home has been taken down. We learn it was done on the Monday after the speaking between the Electors in the Court House here. What can be the meaning of it? We surmise that for some good reason it means GRANT not GREELEY. Time will tell.

☞A correspondent writes us saying that Captain ZION F. SCARBOROUGH, the defeated candidate in Dare County for the House of Representatives, and Greeley and Brown sub-elector for that County has declared that he would not give "five cents" for the difference between GREELEY and GRANT for president. Captain SCARBOROUGH is an original Democrat, and opposed to either "Conservative" or "Liberal Republican" being added to it. He will not vote for either candidate.

☞Last week we paid a flying visit to Annapolis. We called on the editor of the Gazette—a paper that has been regularly published since 1747, being the oldest paper with probably two exceptions published in this country. Of course most of our readers are aware that Annapolis is one of the oldest cities in America, dating back to the colonial period, but many do not know the Naval Academy located there is the largest, most extensive and most thorough Naval School in the world. Until we visited it we had no conception of its magnitude Believing that a series of articles describing its various departments would be interesting to our readers we made arrangements with a gentleman thoroughly competent for the work to prepare them for the NORTH CAROLINIAN. The first will appear at an early date.

Astronomer.—Can't tell which was made first the Earth or Sun. There is probably only one man now living in this region who was alive when the world was made and he wont tell. Judging from other things we should think the Sun was made last.

Investigator.—The days of the week were named after noted persons—thus, Monday after the man in the moon. Thursday after a celebrated French General named Sones. Friday after Robenson Cruso's intimate friend and companion, and so on.

Judge A. Hagan, now of California, a life long Democrat, who had been claimed as supporting Greeley, is strong for Grant. He made a speech at a political meeting in Watsonville, that State, not long since, in which he claimed that no true Southern man can support a mongrel ticket; that if the Democratic party should recover from its lethargy and make nominations, he would be with the old party, but as between the tickets then in the field, he was with the honest party, and decidedly for Grant and Wilson.

MARRIAGES

SNOW—BANKS.—In this City, on the 19th inst., by Jabez Pritchett Esq., Mr. CALEB SNOW to Miss REBECCA BANKS.

OLD THINGS HAVE PASSED AWAY.—This is at least true of the old method of treating the long abused and much abused human body. It is no longer considered wise to put a patient to the torture in order to cure him of a disease in which he is already undermining the energies of his system. True science ranges itself on the side of nature, and endeavors to assist her in her fight against disease. This is the province of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the most approved tonic ever advertised in this country. It may be recommended as a fall medicine, par excellence; for it is in the fall that biliousness, dyspepsia and miasmatic fevers are especially prevalent. The tissue, exhausted by the heats of summer, is relaxed and feeble at its close, and repair, we may say demands artificial assistance. Afford it that assistance in the form of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the evils referred to may be escaped. Throughout the far West, and on the steaming alluvial of the Southern rivers, all the varieties of periodical fever are probably held in fee by. Heal course of Hostetter's Bitters been resumed by the sufferers a month ago, i. e., before the unhealthy season set in, even eighths of them would in all probability be in their usual health at the present time. So much for want of foresight. So much for not keeping in the house, and using daily, the best safeguard against epidemic and endemic fevers.

As flocks of imposters and imitators are trying to follow in the wake of the great American remedy, therefore be sure that the article you buy is genuine and verified by the proper trade-marks. The true article can only be obtained in bottles. Beware of the spurious bitters sold by the gallon or in keg.

Beware of Counterfeits!

JOB MOSES' SIR JAMES CLARKE'S FEMALE PILLS

are extensively COUNTERFEITED. Dishonest Druggists endeavor to sell the counterfeits to make greater profits. The genuine have the name of Job Moses on each package. All others are worthless imitations. The GENUINE Pills are unfailing in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. They moderate all excesses and remove all obstructions, from whatever cause.

$500,000 IN BANK.

GRAND GIFT CONCERT

Postponed to Dec. 7, 1872.

THE SECOND GRAND GIFT CONCERT in aid of the Public Library in Kentucky, announced for September 28, has been postponed to December 7, 1872, because the accumulation of orders the few days before the drawing made it physically impossible to fill them without a few days' delay, and as a short postponement was inevitable, it was determined to defer it to a time that would make a full drawing sure by the sale of all the tickets.

The money necessary to pay in full all the offered gifts is now upon deposit in the Farmer's and Drovers' Bank, as will be seen by the following certificate of the Cashier:

FARMERS' AND DROVERS' BANK.
LOUISVILLE, KY., Sept. 26. 1872.

This is to certify that there is now on deposit in this bank over half a million of dollars to the credit of the Gift Concert fund, $500,000 of which is held by this bank as Treasurer of the Public Library of Kentucky to pay off all gifts to be awarded at the Drawing.

R. S. VEACH, Cashier.

1,000 Prizes, amounting to

$500,000 IN CASH,

will be awarded the highest prizes being $100,000, $50,000, $25,000, and down in regular gradation to $100, which is the lowest.

The Drawing will positively and unequivocally take place December 7. Agents are peremptorily required to close sales and make returns November 25, in order to give ample time for final arrangements. Orders for tickets or applications for circulars should be addressed to

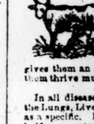
CELEBRATED

Horse and Cattle Powders.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited horses, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.



To keepers of Cows this preparation is invaluable. It is a sure preventive against Rinderpest, Hollow Horn, etc. It has been proven by actual experiment to increase the quantity of milk and cream twenty per cent. and make the butter firm and sweet. In fattening cattle, it gives them an appetite, loosens their hide, and makes them thrive much faster.

In all diseases of Swine, such as Coughs, Ulcers in the Lungs, Liver, &c., this article acts as a specific. By putting from one-half a paper to a paper in a barrel of swill the above diseases will be eradicated or entirely prevented. If given in time, a certain preventive and cure for the Hog Cholera.

Timely Farm Topics.

In a climate were corn, grass, and roots are leading crops, much can be known of a farmer's success by the way in which he manages in August. A man who is not likely to clear up his mortgage will go a clamming if he lives near the sea, or a fishing for dace and eels; he will have business in the village, and getting there will talk and trade a little, and bet a little, and drink a little, and smoke a good deal. He worked as hard as anybody through harvest, and he is waiting for cooler weather before he thrashes. He hears of a horse a dozen miles away, and thinks may be it will match one of his; rides to see, and loses half a day—thinks of some man who owes him $2 50, and rides five miles further to see him; find him at the back end of the lot, and concludes he will call at another time. Thus the months slips away, and many a farmer, who considers himself a hard toiling man, has nothing to show for its 26 working days. There are hardly a hundred farms in the country that are absolutely complete and satisfactory to a man who has just ideas of what a farm should be. Who knows of a place where there are no bushes to grub, no walls to lay, no swamps to ditch, no posts to set? August is the month for these improvements. Up to the end of July it is all any of us can do to keep the crops and the weeds from running away with everything on the place. The sunrises come now too soon, and the sunsets surprize us with tasks three-quarters done. But with August the scene changes. Then the man who is bound to make a place worth more than it cost him shows himself. He has a plan; he knows what he wants, and has a clear idea of the way to his object. His line fences he will work at till they are horse high, bull strong, and pig tight. In August he lays the corner-stone for a noble pile of compost by getting many hundred loads of swamp or march meadow muck to hard ground, and much of it to his yards and stables. Builds, and paints, and roofs, and clears away. He digs a well or lays pipes from a spring to his barn; he cuts a ton of wild grass to pack around his ice. He works his roads.

On grass farms it requires special foresight and preparation to supply cows with plenty of juicy food. There has been much discussion of the value of green corn for this purpose. Much of this no doubt has come of confounding cows food with horses food. But the advocates of green corn have it. There was never such a breadth of thick corn as this year. Those who try it once, seldom abandon the practice, and hundreds every year lay off a patch for corn. The best way is to sow in drills three feet apart, but thick in the drill, and cut and feel when the tassel appears.

Where the character of a farm admits of it, much is gained by having red-top in a cool meadow, which grows till the middle of August. In peaty lands red-top will skirmish with water grasses and weeds, and may take the surface when timothy and clover would be smothered out. A great deal of timothy is not ready to be cut till the 4th of July, and the flower falls off the head before the 10th, and then it is suffering to be cut. If the farmer has 50 acres of timothy, a fourth of it will be cut too soon, and half of it when it is going back. But if he has 12 acres of clover, 12 of timothy, and 25 of red-top, he can cut one the last of June, the other the first half of July, and the meadow in August. This distribution of the hay season would give us better hay, and relieve the strain that comes on the grass-farmer in July.

In the latter part of August is the time for improving the corn crop by a careful choice of seed. It is not sufficient, when husking, to pick out the long, well-filled ears. The best seed-corn is that taken from the middle of the ear, the ear a choice one, and growing on a stalk with another good ear. Provide a quanty of red strings, and going through the field, tie a mark around several hundred of the ears that are best in every respect. By taking the thickest ears and planting them on rich soil, so that they will get length, the largest-sized ears are developed. Like produces like as constantly in the corn-fields as in the stable.

The best use to make of an August calf is to feed him high and make veal of him before hard frosts. As cold weather sets in a large part of what is given to any animal goes; not to flesh, but to the supply of vital warmth. It is profitable to get all the growth that is possible while the air is cool, and late grass is good. When poultry and fresh pork are sent freely to market the price of veal declines.

August never comes and goes without reminding large sections of our country of how much they lose for want of enough moisture at the right time. This is the time for laying a dam across a brook or creek, and taking out the water that is to be used on meadows. A great portion of our lands are level and cannot be wet by canals, but they may be sprinkled by lifting water into a tank with a windmill, and attaching a pipe to the bottom of the tank. A pipe 300 feet long with such a head of water as to throw a stream some feet beyond will wet 10 acres. A drive well, a windmill and tank can be erected by contract for about $500, and on most farms where August labor is cheap and material abundant the cost of an apparatus for moistening 10 acres may be less than half the figures named. By abundant moisture and manure all our lands may yield two crops, and many four.

A farmer in South Jersey sold Early Rhose potatoes on the 15th of June for $4 a bushel, plowed and manured the plot, planted it again with late potatoes, which were up and thrifty-looking by the 4th of July. Two acres of land well manured and often wet will keep a cow a year. One serious drawback in wide farming is the planting on a venture and losing the labor on one or two crops. If May is dry there will be good corn and poor grass. If May is cool and wet grass may be heavy, but wheat a half crop. Could we but control the moisture on a few acres we might have each crop yield to our perfect satisfaction.

The question will now arise, what to do with the aftermath of your meadows. Careful experiments have long since demonstrated that leaving the aftermath both uncut and unpastured is the best dispostion to be made of it. Just in proportion as the land is thus protected and enriched so will the crop of next year be benefited. The scattered droppings of the animals will not compensate for the close clipping of the grass, and the bare surface expose to the snows and frosts of Winter. The aftermath not only returns to the soil all it drew from thence but much more matter which it has drawn from the atmosphere and assimilpted into itself. Every one knows that the forest leaves keep up a prepetual supply of fertility in the soil which makes the trees spring forth each year with renewed vigor. The aftermath returns itself to you not only in an increased yield of grass the next year, but also in just so much permanent strength added to the soil.

Gov. Wise is dissatisfied. He don't want Grant and he won't have Greeley. What will he do?

SOUTHERN CLAIMS

AGAINST

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT.

Loyal citizens of North Carolina and other Southern States, will be pleased to learn that Congress at the last session passed a law for a commission to be appointed to examine and report on all claims that may be presented to them for Quartermaster and Commissary stores furnished the Federal Army during the late war.

The undersigned are prepared to furnish blanks, and give all information to those having claims—and to prosecutel the same to final settlement. Having received the endorsement for ability, &c., from the Hon. Senators Messrs. Pool and Abbott and the Representatives from North Carolina—we believe that we can give satisfaction to all who entrust their claims to us.

OF VALUABLE

NORTH CAROLINA LANDS,

FOR SALE BY

GEORGE D. POOL.

Real Estate Agent,

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.

In presenting my list of lands and other properties for sale, I would say that no section of the United States offers such inducements for capitalisis and emigrants, as this section of North Carolina. In longevity and healthfulness, it will compare favorably with any where: and in easy and cheap transportation of products to market, in pleasantness of climate, in the sociability of the people, in great fertility, and durability of soil, no section can equal it.

A railroad will soon be built to Weldon, putting this place in direct communication by Rail, with the whole United States. This, together with our great fishing. farming and manufacturing interests, and certain early completion of already projected works of improvement for putting in nearer, cheaper and easier communication with the Ocean, will render this one of the most important commercial, and manufacturing points on the Southern country.

A Steam Saw and Grist Mill in the town of Nixonton 8 miles from E. City. This Mill has a fine wharf and store attached on deep navigable water, the engine is 40 horse power, and all in good order. It is one of the finest locations to be found any where for custom work, and for getting good saw logs easily and cheaply. Price $4,000 cash.

Adjoining the mill property is 40 acres of fine land on the River, with three houses. all for $1200. Near the same is a good two story dwelling and 13 acres of land for $2.000, and a good one story dwelling, with one acre of land for $300.

Also two fine farms in Pasquotauk county, 10 miles from E. City, within half mile of church. school house and post office. One tract contains about 400 acres, with fair buildings and mostly cleared, and the other contains 300 acres, with good two story dwelling, large barn, and other outhouses, both are offered at $20 per acre, one third cash, balance in one and two years.

Also one other tract in Pasquotank county, containing 116 acres, within one mile of the town with fine buildings, mostly cleared and in cultivation. Price $25 per acre, one half cash, balance in 12 months.

A valuable site for a hotel at Nag's Head, 40 miles from Elizabeth City, and 50 miles from Edenton. This is situated immediately on the Ocean, and is a famous Summer resort for invalids, and those seeking health, comfort, and amusements during the summer months. It is in direct communication by steamboats and railroad with all parts of North Carolina, Virginia, and the North; and is equal in natural advantages to Newport, or Cape May. Visitors flock to this famous summer resort by hundreds and thousands, and a large amount of money can be made by a hotel. A charter has been obtained from the Legislature of N. C., for a joint stock company to build the hotel. There is now an old hotel on the spot, which could be cheaply repaired and bought for $3,000. This hotel, though imperfectly kept, cleared the proprietor last season, over $3.000. For a man or a company, having some capital, this is one of the finest chances to make money at hotel keeping to be found anywhere. The early attention of the public is invited to this property.

A fine steam saw and grist mill at Hertford, the county seat of Perquimans County, N. C., 18 miles from Elizabeth City. This mill has a fifty horse power engine, now in good running, two pairs of best French burr stones, and two upright saws. The house has a brick basement, and the building is large and in good order. There is one and a half acres of land belonging to this property, and a good two story dwelling, and other out-houses. The section of country adjacent abounds in the finest yellow pine, cypress, ash, poplar, and other valuable timber. This property originally cost $15.000, and is now offered at forced sale for the low price of $3.500, $7.00, cash, and the balance in six equal instalments, six months apart each with interest.

A fine farm and fishery in same county. The farm contains 400 acres of the finest land, lies immediately on Albemarle Sound where the water is 12 miles wide, and 18 to 20 feet deep, has got buildings, and fine neighborhood. The fishery is on the farm and goes with it. It has a new seine 2,500 yards long, and all the necessary boats, buildings, &c., (which cost over $15,000 two years ago.) The fishery alone, of a good season, will make from 5 to $10,000 profit to the owner. This property is offered at forced sale for the low price of $20,000, $7,000 cash, balance on easy times.

A store at South Mills, in Camden county, 20 miles from E. City, and 20 miles from Norfolk, lying on the canal where steamers pass daily. A fine chance for merchandize. Store is large with dwelling above containing six rooms, is in first rate order, has office, kitchen, dairy, and other necessary outhouses. Goods to the amt. of $50,000 per annum can be sold here, and at large profits. A splended stand for a country retail store. Price $2,500—one third cash, balance in one and two years.

A valuable tract of land in Camden county, at South Mills, on the Dismal Swamp Canal, lying on the canal for two miles, containing over 900 acres of land—two-thirds cleared, and in a fine state of cultivation, with good buildings, &c.; balance in valuable timber. Price $12,000, one-third cash, balance in one and two years, interest from January, 1871. This is a valuable farm for corn, wheat, and vegetables, and being midway between Elizabeth City and Norfolk, and located where steamers pass by the door daily, is a desirable and cheap property.

A fine farm of 600 acres within six miles of E. City, one mile from navigable water, and the best cotton farm in the State. It is also well adapted to raising corn and wheat. This farm has a splended two-story dwelling upon it, large barn, 40 by 60 feet, a large number of outhouses, by splended trees and shrubbery, is in a strong Union neighborhood, and altogether the most desirable place in the county. A little over one-half of this land is cleared, and the balance is covered with the finest yellow pine, poplar, ash and other timber. Price $30 per acre—one-third cash, balance in one and two years with interest. Title reserved.

Sixteen houses and lots in Elizabeth City, with good dwellings, out-houses, &c. Prices and terms reasonable.

A valuable farm in Perquimans county, N. C. near navigable water. Has a fine dwelling-house with ten rooms, in splended order, with splended barns and stables—all in first rate order. The farm is very productive in corn, oats, wheat, cotton and clover. It is one of the finest farms in the State and is now in good cultivation, contains 585 acres of land, about three-fourths cleared and under cultivation. Price $10,000, one-third cash January 1, next balance in two equal annual instalments with interest at the rate of six per cent.

A farm of 370 acres 8 miles from town by water, and 12 miles by land, is offered for sale for $10,000 in easy payments. This tract of land lies immediately on the River which is 4 miles wide and washes the farm its whole length on one side, and a branch of the River one mile wide, binds it on one end. The land is well adapted to raising corn, wheat, cotton, oats, peas, &c., lies high and dry, and is susceptible of the highest improvement. Fronting and looking over, as it does, two large sheets of navigable water, where steamers and sailing vessels are constantly passing, carrying freight and passengers to all parts of the country, its location and surroundings, are of the most fascinating and desirable character. There is a fishery on it ready for working a seine 2,500 yards long, and which commands a portion of both streams of water, and can be made immensely profitable. The price charged is low, and the purchase a very desirable one. The buildings consist of a good two-story dwelling and out-houses.

A desirable house and lot in the town of Elizabeth City on the corner of two principal streets, the principal one, and situated in the best business locality in the town. The lot contains about two acres of land, and the buildings consist of a fair dwelling three stories high, containing eight rooms, all in good order, another two story building with four rooms and pantries, dairy, smokehouses, stables, &c. The dwelling has a good cellar under it. There is room on the front lot to erect two good stores, and they would occupy the best stand in the town for merchandize.

A Farm of 200 acres within one mile of Elizabeth City, with good two story dwelling, large barn and stables, and all necessary outhouses, orchard of fine fruit trees, and a large number of ornamental trees and shrubbery around dwelling. This farm is on one of the most public roads in the County—is in a high state of cultivation—has fine and durable fences, &c. Altogether, it is the richest land and most desirable location, anywhere in the neighborhood of the town. Price $6000—one-half cash, balance in easy payments.

KEYSTONE MILL COMPANY'S

PREPARED WHEAT

AND

SUGAR OF MILK.

Patented July 23d, 1872.

A FARINACEOUS FOOD FOR INVALIDS AND INFANTS.

By the peculiar process in which this preparation is made, all the flesh forming constituents—Earthy and Saline elements of the grain are retained, with none of the Starch, all of which being converted into Dextrine. It contains all the Lime, Sulphur, Phosphorus, Iron and Manganese for the animal juices, and Gum and Fecula for respiration and fatty tissue, with the proteine compounds (Gluten, Albumen &c.) from which nerve and muscular tissues are formed.

It is believed by the most intelligent men that much of the suffering, sickness and mortality of mankind is traceable to deficient or faulty nutrition. The same cause may also be assigned the frequent disapointment of physicians in the result of the action of most approved remedies. We feel sure that this article will supply the deficiency.

Sugar of Milk.

[LACTIN.]

Is a chrystalized sugar, obtained from the whey of cow's milk by evoporation. It is manufactured largely in Switzerland and the Bavarian Alps as an articele of food and for medical purposes.

It has been used considerably in England as a non-nitrogenous articele of diet in Consumption and other Pulmonary Diseases, and with excelent effect in extreme Irritability of the Stomach, (see Wood & Bache's Dispensatory.)

We manufacture 2 grades:—No. 1, in yellow wrapper, ground coarse, to be eaten as cracked wheat, with cream. No. 2, white wrapper, is ground into Flour for Puddings, Blanc-Mange and Bread.

DIRECTIONS.

For Making Mush with No. 1, Ground Coarce.—Mix four tablespoonfuls of the Wheat with a gill of cold water; rub into a smooth paste; then pour it into a pint of boiling water, stirring briskly, boil for 20 minutes. To be eaten with rich cream.

For Puddings, &c. use No. 2, Ground Fine.—Mix a tablespoonful of the food with a small quantity of cold water rub to a smooth paste; add to one-half pint of boiling water, constantly stirring, and boil about 8 minutes over a moderate fire. Add milk and flavor to taste. For bread, use as ordinary flour.

PRICE 50 CENTS A POUND.

What Horace Greeley Thinks of the Democratic Party.

EXTRACTS, RICH, RARE AND RACY.

Now that Mr. Greeley has become the leader of the Democracy, we present the following extracts from editorials of the New York Tribune, writen by Mr. Greeley during the forty years of his editorial life. They are refreshing, and will not nauseate Democrats who have lost all self-respect,—forsaken principle in their hunt for office,—and become first-class dirt-eaters. The extracts are as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE DISEASE.

"Mr. Webster was not only a gentleman, but he had the elements of moral greatness; and he had his faults as well. He failed only in one respect; and in this respect I differ from him—he wanted to be President, and I don't.—Horace Greeley, in 1868.

OUR GREATEST MAN.

"We have seen our greatest man, Mr. Chase, making the same blunder. I have seen men who had the disease early, and died of it at a very old age."—Horace Geeley, in 1868.

THE FATE OF GEN. CASS.

"Gen. Lewis Cass died at 82, and up to the day of his death he wanted to be President. No one ever escapes who catches the disease: he lives and dies in the delusion. Being a reader and an observer at an early age, I saw how it poisoned and paralyzed the best of our public men, and have carefully avoided it."—Horace Greeley, in 1866.

THE GOOD SENSE OF GEN. GRANT.

"We, at least, in our day, have a President-elect who did not try to be President. He was elected mainly on that account."—Horace Greele r, in 1868.

THE ENEMY OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

"If the Democratic party were called upon to decide between Grant and myself, I know that their regard for what they must call principle would induce nine-tenths of them to vote against me. Why? I am a decided enemy of that party, even in its most respectable aspects."—Horace Greeley, in 1871.

PICTURES OF THE DEMOCRACY.

"Every one who chooses to live by pugilism or gambling or harlotry, with nearly every keeper of a tippling house, is politically a Democrat."—Horace Greeley.

IGNORANCE A DEMOCRATIC ALLY.

"If there were not a newspaper or a common school in the country, the Democratic party would be far stronger than it is."—Horace Greeley.

DEMOCRATIC ESSENTIALS.

"The essential articles of the Democratic creed [are] 'love rum and hate niggers.' The less one learns and knows, the more certain he is to vote the regular ticket from A to izzard."—Horace Greeley.

WHO ARE DEMOCRATS.

"We thereupon asked our contemporary to state frankly whether the pugilists, blacklegs, thieves, burglars, keepers of dens of prostitution, etc., etc., were not almost unanimously Democrats."—Horace Greeley.

DEMOCRATIC VIRTUES.

"To smoke is a Democratic virtue; to chew is that virtue intensified; to drink rum is that virtue in the superlative."—Horace Greeley.

THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATS.

"Point wherever you please to an election district which you will pronounce morally rotten, given up in great part to debauchery and vice; where voters subsist mainly by keeping policy-offices, gambling houses, grog-shops and darker dens of infamy, and that district will be found at nearly or quite every election giving a majority for that which styles itself 'the Democratic party.' Take all the haunts of debauchery in the land, and you will find nine tenths of their master spirits active partisans of that same Democracy. What is the instinct, the sympathetic chord, which attaches them so uniformly to this party? Will you consider?"—Horace Greeley.

REBEL DEMOCRACY.

"The brain, the heart, the soul of the present Democratic party is the rebel element at the South, with its Northern allies and sympathisers. It is rebel at the core to-day. It would come into power with the hate, the chagrin, the wrath, the mortification of ten bitter years to impel and guide its steps. It would devote itself to taking off or reducing tax after tax until the Treasury was deprived of the means of paying interest on the national debt, and would hail the tidings of national bankruptcy with unalloyed gladness and unconcealed exultation. Whatever chastisement may be deserved by our national sins, we must hope that this disgrace and humiliation will be spared us."—Horace Greely.

THE FEROCIOUS PROTECTICNIST."

"You only err as to the proper candidate. I am not the man you need. Your party is modestly Free Trade, and I am a ferocious Protectionist. I have no doubt that I might be nominated and elected by your help but it would place us all in a false position."—Horace Greeley to P. Donan, in 1871.

"THE BAYNOT LAW OF 1870"

"It is urged by the Democratic organs that the law is to be enforced in State and municipal elections. This is done to make it more obnoxious, if that be possible, to their party. But, unfortunately, this is an error. The law applies only to presidential and congressional election, though we heartily wish it could be made to apply to all others."—Horace Greeley.

THE KU-KLUX LAW.

"I hold our Government bound by its duty of protecting our citizens in their fundamental rights, to pass and enforce laws for the extirpation of the execrable Ku Klux conspiricy; and, if it has not the power to do it, then I say our Government is no government, but a sham. I, therefore, on every proper occasion, advocated and justified the Ku Klux Act. I hold it especially desirable for the South; and, if it does not prove strong enough to effect its pourpose, I hope it will be made stronger and stronger."—Horace Greely in 1872!

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S LINEL SUCCESSOR.

"Many will be surprised at the President's hearty endorsement of civil service reform [in his message of 1870;] but he has been there all along. The President's summing up of the leading objects of his policy, and especially his desire to secure a pure and untrameled vote, must appeal cogently to the judgment and affections of the American people. He is Abraham Lincoln's lineal successor; and the popular heart beats in unison with his administration and his efforts.—Horace Greeley in 1870.

"The great Gorilla of the Democracy is filling the air with his demonical howling, and beating his breast like a tremendous drum, to express his savage joy over the first full meal he has had after years of enforced abstinence. Eat your fill now, Gorilla, for you will never have another chance!"—Tribune, Nov. 11th, 1867.
